ANNUAL CRANBERRY BOWL

The annual Cranberry Bowl game will be held this Saturday, October 30th, at the Wareham High School field when Wareham High and Old Rochester Regional High will clash for possession of the "Cranberry Bowl", a Paul Revere silver bowl. The bowl will be presented to the winning captains and coaches at the annual Cranberry Ball to be held that evening at 7:30 P.M. at the Wareham Town Hall. The new Cranberry Bowl Queen will also be crowned at the dance

The Queen of the Cranberry Bowl is picked from candidates from the Junior Class of both schools. The candidates, chosen by their classmates, are: Joan Lukey, Paula Ravaioli and twins, Janice and Joanne Smith, from Wareham High; and Karen Eckersley, Laura Escobar, Susan Sylvia and Barbara Hardy from Old Rochester Regional.

The first cranberry bowl festival was held in 1962 when Wareham captured the bowl by a score of 23 to 18. Old Rochester came back in 1963 to take possession of the bowl by beating Wareham 7 to 0. That year the first queen was chosen, Miss Sheila Parker of Wareham. Last year, in 1964, Wareham recaptured the bowl by a score of 7 to 0 and Miss Brenda Kinney of Old Rochester was chosen as queen.

The Wareham Exchange Club will sponsor the festival this year. Members in charge

Father reminded the members that Pope Gregory was also famous in history for giving the world the Gregorian calendar as well as the Gregorian chant. The second film explained the Mass as it is currently being cele-

61 Years Ago -- 1904

On the front page of the New Bedford Evening Standard for June 3, 1904 appears the following lead column:

FLYING MACHINE WRECKED

One puff of Wind Destroyed Nathan Oliver's Hopes

Airship Torn to Pieces on Shore of Mattapoisett Neck

Inventor Looked Forward to Entering Competition at St. Louis

After months of labor throughout the winter and spring in building a ship to navigate the air, and after cherishing fond hopes of being able to fly through the ethereal ocean--to have all these prospects destroyed in one fell puff of wind is the fate of Nathan Oliver, the Mattapoisett Neck inventor.

Mr. Oliver, who is a farmer at Mattapoisett Neck, has made a considerable study of flying machines, and all during the past winter has been zealously at work on his invention. Last Saturday was chosen as the day when the airship should be launched, and the trial sail through the air made. But fate must have been against the inventor, for when the flying machine was carried out on the shore the wind, which was blowing briskly, pounced upon it and tore it to pieces. Mr. Oliver did not even have an opportunity to try his skill at managing the ship, or even propelling it, for the wind had the start of him.

Mr. Oliver has been cherishing the idea of going to St. Louis this summer with his airship, there to enter in the competition with Santos Dumont, the Brazilian baloonist, and other inventors of flying machines, and he has had great confidence in the superiority of his invention over others.

The airship was built on the "bird theory". The sustaining power was a canopy, about the shape of an umbrella, even having the scalloped edges, and differing only from the rainy day contrivance in that it was made flat. It was made of bamboo poles and wire, covered with light cloth.

The machine was to be propelled by pedals, after the plan of a bicycle, and Mr. Oliver thought that as long as the strength of the operator held out the ship would remain in the air. By slanting the canopy the ship was to be made to rise, and in descending the canopy would act as a parachute, while the pedal device was worked slower. The ship was fitted with a steering gear which was to be operated by the hands.

But now, all these plans seem to have been for naught, for the ship lies on the shore, completely demolished. During the winter and this spring Mr. Oliver has neglected all his other work for his invention, so confident was he in its success, and he has not even planted a single hill of corn on his farm yet. Whether he will continue in the work on his airship, after the manner of a never-weary inventor, or whether he will give up discouraged and go back to his farming life, is not yet known.

GRANGE MEETING

The Mattapoisett Grange held its bi-monthly meeting last Thursday night in the Grange Hall. Arletta Bean, master of Marion Grange; and Manual Roderick, Jr., master of Fairhaven Grange, were the honored guests.

Mrs. Etta Kellish gave her annual report on the relief work she has done. Mrs. Ruby Barber reported on the afternoon card party and announced a Penny Sale for the next meeting, November 4th.

Agricultural report was given by Joseph Furtado, expressing the need for more help for the farmers, especially the small farms in this district who work so hard for so little revenue in return.

Birthdays of Mrs. Walter Vaughan and Lemuel LeBaron were recognized. Walter Caswell was in charge of the lecturer's hour and presented a delightful program. He opened
